Soundrangers Makes Downloading Royalty-Free Sound Effects And Music Easy -
Website Continues To Innovate With Recent Upgrades

SEATTLE, WA - May 17, 2004 /Send2Press Newswire/ -- Soundrangers (www.Soundrangers.com), established in 1998, took a unique approach to the field of royalty-free sound effects and music. Soundrangers was one of the first to specialize in creating sounds specifically for interactive media, such as websites and games. Soundrangers was also one of the first to make sounds available for purchase and download over the internet. Now, with their recent site upgrades, Soundrangers continues to innovate making acquiring sound from the web easier than ever.

Some of the new features include: Preview sounds in your shopping cart. Save your shopping cart with the option of sending your selections to a client for approval. Selectable sound file format including sample rate and bit rate. View your order history and re-download your sounds at anytime -- a helpful feature if you want to try a different file type, sample or bit rate. Pre-paid accounts, which allow multiple users to download sounds without the hassle of tracking company credit cards or multiple POs.

The sound effects and music from Soundrangers are designed to "plug-and-play," meaning they're ready to drop right into your production without any editing or production work. With the recent site upgrades, using high quality sound in your productions has become even easier.

Web designers, game developers and software makers know that high quality sound can help distinguish their products in the competitive high-tech and entertainment industries. However, trying to find or create sound that will work with the unique demands of interactive media, especially within today's tight budgets and production schedules, can be a challenge. Soundrangers' easy to use sounds and now upgraded site can help, while still allowing the highest possible sound quality and creativity.

Soundrangers is a Seattle-based company that creates all original sound effects and music designed specifically for interactive media, and sells these sounds via their website <http://www.Soundrangers.com>. Soundrangers has also been creating custom audio content for clients in the high-tech, entertainment and multimedia industries for more than a decade.

Accomplishments include an Emmy Award for sound engineering, as well as sound design and music production, for clients such as Smashing Ideas, Amaze Entertainment, Microsoft Game Studios, Compaq, Hewlett-Packard, Sony Records and Nintendo. Visit <http://www.soundrangers.com> to build your audio arsenal.
