AeroGroup rises to success at Jacksonville Florida with the Royal Netherlands Air Force (RNLAf)

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. - March 3, 2004 /Send2Press Newswire/ -- AeroGroup Incorporated (Pink Sheets: AROU) announces that it has new operations underway and has successfully begun providing operational support for F-16 training exercises at Cecil Field, Jacksonville Florida with the Royal Netherlands Air Force (RNLAf). The training missions are conducted in Military Operating Areas (MOA's) located throughout Florida and are unique as an allied NATO country utilizing a U.S. civilian contractor to perform services that were only provided by the U.S. Government previously.

Last year, June 2003, AeroGroup began a "first-of-its-kind" program, an F-16 operational detachment at Melbourne Florida International Airport, which was an operational success for the RNLAf. However, because of the noise, was not for the surrounding Melbourne community. The move to a former U.S. Navy fighter base located in Jacksonville was then initiated.

AeroGroup's CEO, Mark Daniels, stated "It was really tough what we went through in Melbourne and getting things organized in Jacksonville, but we didn't give up. There were those who said it couldn't be done and we have proven them wrong. Just like with anything in business and life, you have stick with it, look at the lessons learned, apply them and move on to succeed in whatever you are pursuing."

"AeroGroup has been in the process of reorganizing our business case, management and personnel. AeroGroup has direction, is focused and is looking to a successful future."

About AeroGroup Incorporated

AeroGroup Incorporated is a Florida-based tactical aviation company created to capitalize on the shortfalls in aviation support within the U.S. Military and approved NATO countries. AeroGroup has a staff of aviation professionals and is well positioned to supply tactical aviation support services that go unmet by military organizations each year.
