

Tagistics Corporation Aligns with Sun Microsystems to Release RFID Central(tm) a Turn-Key RFID Offering for Companies with Chinese Manufactured Products

BOCA RATON, Fla. – (SEND2PRESS NEWSWIRE) – Tagistics Corporation today announced an alliance and licensing agreement for the Sun Java(tm) System RFID Tag and Ship Solution and Sun Java(tm) System RFID Software. Tagistics will incorporate Sun's products into its RFID Central solution, resulting in what the company believes is the first service that enables enterprises to outsource RFID tagging of Chinese manufactured goods.

RFID Central includes hardware, software, retailer integration, and system management. This complete RFID package allows companies to meet international retailer mandates and realize new efficiencies from their supply chain. RFID Central consolidates Chinese manufacturing sites and retailer distribution centers into one "snap shot" for global visibility of goods movement between Asia, Europe and America.

"By combining our solution with the power of Sun we are first to market with a complete RFID offering that includes Chinese source tagging," said Herbert P. Goertz, Tagistics' CEO. Mr. Goertz continued to say "Source tagging allows companies to increase FOB shipments to retailers, improve inventory control, and meet retailer mandates all at the same time. This creates the ROI the market is looking for."

Sun is a leading provider of RFID technologies and solutions with heavy investments in software development and operational RFID centers like the ones in Dallas TX and Singapore. "The demand for RFID is growing, however RFID deployments are not simple and no one company can do it alone," said Julie Sarbacker, Director of RFID Business at Sun, "The Tagistics RFID Central solution provides a simple, yet powerful way for manufacturers to quickly meet retail mandates."

Tagistics and Sun will present RFID Central live in Beijing at this year's RFID China Forum 2005 April 26-28. Tagistics' President, Christopher J. Terry, will be delivering a keynote address on RFID technology; Sun is a Silver sponsor of the event.
