

Internet Turning Seemingly Ordinary People into Super Heroes

Internet Service with Help of Super Heroes Donates to Charities

GREENWICH, CT – July 27 (SEND2PRESS NEWSWIRE) – Janutes.com, a Connecticut based internet service provider (ISP), will give 5 dollars per subscriber, per month, to Charity in an ongoing basis to help raise money for Cancer Research.

Cancer in various forms will take the lives of an estimated 570,280 Americans this year alone, and an estimated 1,372,910 new cases will strike the lives of the men and women in America in 2005. Breast cancer makes up 32% of new cases in women, and for men 33% will contract Prostate cancer. (Source: American Cancer Society 2005.)

A 2004 Cone/Roper report that states an unprecedented 86% of Americans would be willing to switch from one brand to another that is about the same in price and quality, if the other brand is associated with a cause.

“It is that kind of spirit that makes America such a great country,” said Tony G Haight, president of Janutes.Com; he also went on to say, “if we all stand together, each one linked to the next, we could accomplish anything.”

Janutes was the name affectionately used when Haight referred to his Grandmother. Haight went on to say he started the company because his Grandmother and 11 family members all stricken with various forms of cancer had passed away, along with several friends.
