This book is the third sports personality related book from Indy-Tech Publishing. “These books are fun for us to write, and they let us work with subjects that we are passionate about on a more personal level,” notes Richard White, Publisher at Sams Technical Publishing. “I have always enjoyed sports statistics, and as a racing fan, Danica Patrick’s rookie season peaked my interest.”

Danica Patrick compiles the 2005 Indy Racing League season with its focus entirely on Danica Patrick. With race-by-race recaps of her performance and an expanded section on the 89th Indianapolis 500, this book is a collectable item for all race fans. Color photos are included of Danica Patrick both on and off the track.

Indy-Tech Publishing’s Editorial Staff has compiled a number of books including Peyton Manning: Passing the Record, Reggie Miller: Shooting Star, and The Brickyard 400 Trackside Guide. The staff at Indy-Tech Publishing is dedicated to publishing statistical sports books that become keepsakes.
