

People's Chemist Expresses Concern about Artificial Sweetener – Manufacturer Not Happy

SANTA FE, N.M. – Jan. 22 (SEND2PRESS NEWSWIRE) – Shane Ellison, an organic chemist and author of “Health Myths Exposed,” asserts that a commonly used artificial sweetener may be harmful to our health. In a recent article, Shane bravely hypothesizes that it may “explode internally.” He uses this term to describe its alleged potential to damage many parts of the body such as our genetic map known as DNA – deoxyribonucleic acid.

Furious over his alleged claims, manufacturers of the popular sweetener stated that the information about Splenda(R) (sucralose) included in Shane's article contains many inaccuracies and false information. They asked him to “immediately discontinue any further dissemination of these false and damaging statements.” They continued by saying that if he fails to take these actions promptly, that they would “consider the need for further legal action.”

Known as “The People's Chemist,” Shane is undeterred by such threats. He asserts that he is entitled to his own “hypothesis.” Readers should understand that he is making no definitive statements. Instead, he is expressing his grave concern over this drug disguised as a sweetener. He feels that consumers have a right to know the whole story behind what may be a very dangerous scam in the artificial sweetener business – or not.

To learn about the sweetener that Mr. Ellison alleges may “explode internally” send a blank email to healthmyths@getresponse.com. (Contact Mr. Ellison for privacy policy information.)

Shane holds a Master's degree from Northern Arizona University in organic chemistry. He founded HealthFX Nutraceuticals (www.health-fx.net) and is an internationally recognized authority on therapeutic nutrition. Get his Life Saving Health Briefs and Real Natural Cures FREE at www.healthmyths.net.

His shocking and controversial book, “Health Myths Exposed 2nd Edition” is available at Amazon.com or www.healthmyths.net.

Splenda(R) is a registered trademark of McNeil Nutritionals, LLC.

Text provided by the news source. Editorial note: Send2Press has not confirmed any facts alleged by Mr. Ellison in his “article” except for requiring proof that he was contacted by McNeil Nutritionals, LLC as stated in his news release, which was confirmed.

News issued by: Shane Ellison

#

Original Story ID: (2442) :: 2007-01-0122-005

Original Keywords: Shane Ellison, Splenda, sucralose, HealthFX, OLO Shane Ellison