The intent of the initiative is to improve the targeting of care resources to those under-served children at greatest risk of disease based on analysis by PreViser technology.

NCOHF affiliate clinics provide care to low income children and under the announced initiative will use PreViser technology to assist in providing care most appropriate to a child's individual needs as determined by their objective PreViser risk scores.

To facilitate this process, PreViser Corporation has made a donation of $1,200,000 in assessment technology that will be utilized by NCOHF clinics.

PreViser CEO Carl F. Loeb stated "We are pleased to be able to partner with an organization that is as dedicated to oral health as the NCOHF. There is a great deal of work to be done to improve both the access to, and the quality of care for economically disadvantaged children. Oral disease is not just about cavities, but involves general health concerns that can have a great deal of impact on the degree to which children develop into their potential. We hope this grant of our technology will help the NCOHF in achieving results in this important area of our nation's health."
