The increased requirements of AS9100, which builds on ISO 9001:2000 elements, will benefit both DaveCo's defense and non-defense customers since the standard focuses on critical areas important to all industries such as supply chain management and process control.

DaveCo has focused on improving all processes for quality and efficiency gains, and the AS9100 push has been instrumental in making those efforts successful. The firm has also continued to implement Lean manufacturing techniques to meet the cost reduction requirements of its customers.

As the defense industry continues to push higher levels of production requirements down the supply chain, DaveCo is well-positioned to benefit from those opportunities from several prime defense contractors. The AS9100 implementation along with the continued Lean manufacturing push is helping DaveCo continue to be a leading supplier to the defense and other industries.
