Mr. Johnson, who holds a general science degree from West Point, wrote “Sowing Atheism” in response to the book, “Science, Evolution, and Creationism” published in January by the National Academy of Sciences (NAS). The NAS sent its book to educators, school boards, and science teachers throughout the country.

According to Johnson, the NAS book falsely affirms that molecules-to-man evolution is a “fact” when, in reality, it does not even meet the minimum conditions for a valid theory of science. “The NAS fails to present any bona fide evidence for the spontaneous chemical generation of life from dead matter, for the evolution of the sexes, or for what it calls ‘speciation,’ the alleged evolution of one species into another over vast eons of time,” Mr. Johnson said.

To conceal the lack of evidence for its evo-atheism (evolutionist-atheism), Mr. Johnson writes, the NAS resorts to repetitive false affirmations, disguised tautologies, authoritative obfuscations, baiting and switching, and smearing apostate Christian lipstick on its atheist pig-all in order to mislead and manipulate its audience. “It’s smoke and mirrors, philosophy and empty seduction, not evidence-based inductive science,” Mr. Johnson said.

According to Mr. Johnson’s book, evo-atheism is fundamentally and intrinsically a belief-system, a religion. By insinuating its evo-atheistic religion into public school classrooms as the only approved belief-system in that environment, the NAS violates the intent and spirit of the establishment clause of the First Amendment to the Constitution, and suppresses free speech and free thought.

Mr. Johnson urges concerned citizens to take advantage of the free download, read it critically, send it to educators and school boards in their area, and encourage others to do the same.

Mr. Johnson is also the author of “The Parthenon Code: Mankind’s History in Marble” and “Noah in Ancient Greek Art.”
