

Voices.com Releases Mobile App for iPhone, iPod and BlackBerry

TORONTO, Canada, March 16 (SEND2PRESS NEWSWIRE) – Voices.com is joining the mobile revolution with its own app to showcase its roster of over 25,000 voice over talent by making MP3 audio samples available with the touch of a finger. Voices' mobile application, or "app" as they are commonly called, is fundamentally changing how audio and video producers search for, audition and hire professional voice over talent.

Users can find a complete listing of audio samples organized by category such as audio books, movie trailers, podcasts, radio, television, video games and voicemail recordings.

Voices.com's services are growing and converging, providing the underpinnings for dramatic growth in mobile Internet usage by its key customers and access to its Web application via impressive mobile devices.

Key features of the Voices.com Mobile App include:

- Optimized browsing experience with smooth screen rotation.
- Audio samples available to play with the touch of a finger.
- Click-to-call functionality to connect with a live Voices.com representative.
- Integration with Google Maps to locate Voices.com's head office.
- Quick links to mobile versions of Voices.com's Facebook and Twitter accounts.

On the heels of Apple's success with the App Store, other device manufacturers and operating system providers, including BlackBerry and the Android platform championed by Google, will be aggressively marketing their own virtual store fronts where Voices.com will showcase its application.

Voices.com is well positioned to offer value-added services to mobile-enabled customers both in North America and Europe as well as emerging markets where multimedia production is used in mass communications.
