

Pathbuilders Engages 15 New Clients in the 2010 ACHIEVA Program for High-Potential Women

Equifax, Cbeyond, Carter's, EarthLink, and The Coca-Cola Company join 34 other companies sending high-potential female executives to Pathbuilders ACHIEVA® Program. The class launched on May 21 and will run through April of 2011.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 27 (SEND2PRESS NEWSWIRE) – Pathbuilders Inc. kicked-off its 2010 Achieva program on May 21 at Cobb Galleria with 70 high-potential women from 39 companies. Fifteen of the companies are new to the Pathbuilders client roster: AFC Enterprises, Inc, Atlanta Education Fund, Bard Medical, Carter's, Cbeyond, EarthLink, Inc., Equifax, Georgia Institute of Technology, Habif, Arogeti & Wynne, LLP, Imerys North America Performance Minerals, Manhattan Associates, Moore Colson, OFS, The Coca-Cola Company, and Troutman Sanders LLP. Achieva is one of four external development programs offered by Pathbuilders for high-potential women at critical stages in their careers.

This year's Achieva launch featured a panel discussion of alumnae mentees and current mentors who were asked to share best practices and personal experiences from their mentoring partnerships. The panel was moderated by Raellyn Kovich, director of consulting and development at Pathbuilders. Panelists included Vera Arthur, vice president of human resources for Schweitzer-Mauduit, Inc; Allan DeNiro, chief people officer for Haverty Furniture Companies; Ena Shaw, assistant vice president – customer experience strategic initiatives for AT&T Operations; and Amy Panos, relationship manager in private banking at RBC Bank.

"We are thrilled to be working with an incredibly talented group of female leaders," said Helene Lollis, president of Pathbuilders. "It will be exciting to see them acquire new skills and expand their horizons through the course of the program."

Achieva is the third in a series of four progressive professional development programs designed by Pathbuilders to position women for additional responsibilities and career success. The program includes one-on-one external mentoring with a senior executive, along with educational sessions and peer networking to help each woman become an influential leader within her organization.

The Pathbuilders series of progressive professional development programs include:

- Insignia(SM): comprised of entry-level women, up to two years into their careers
- Percepta(SM): comprised of junior-executive women learning to manage people and projects

- Achieva®: comprised of mid-level, high-potential women, recognized as having senior-executive potential in their organizations
- Inspiria®: comprised of senior-level women leading and setting vision for their organizations.
