

Responsible, Energy Star Certified Homes for Sale in Austin TX

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 31, 2011 (SEND2PRESS NEWSWIRE) – Buffington Homes, the leading builder of homes for sale in Austin TX for over forty years, is excited to announce their devotion to constructing energy efficient homes across Central Texas. With Energy Star Certified and Tested Homes in fifteen communities in central Texas, one does not need to look far to find Austin Texas homes for sale capable of providing an energy efficient, and environmentally friendly, life style while saving thousands in utility bills.

Buffington Homes has several Energy Star Certified Homes for sale in Austin to meet the needs of first time home buyers and families alike. Their energy efficient homes use at least 15% less energy than a non Energy Star Certified and Tested home while providing a more comfortable interior environment. Super efficient air conditioning units along with sized, sealed, and insulated ducts help to increase the heating and cooling efficiency within your new home by as much as 20%, while providing superior humidity control and overall comfort.

To ensure that the interior climate stays ideal through the years, their Energy Star Certified and tested homes for sale in Austin TX undergo a rigorous, 16 point independent inspection to check for proper insulation within the walls, floors, and attic. Also the ducts are tested for leakage.

Buffington Homes include standard Radiant Barrier roof decking to prevent excess heat entering your home on warm, sunny days. Low E glass windows prevent hot and cold air from entering the home, while also protecting the home's furnishing by filtering out UV rays that can harm the colors and durability of furniture, carpets, and drapes.

By purchasing an Energy Star Certified and Tested Buffington Home, you will enjoy energy and utility savings that will increase year by year. And because of high quality construction, appliances, and mechanical units mandated by the EPA's strict Energy Star guidelines, your new energy efficient home will have fewer maintenance demands than any competing conventional home. As we move into the future, your Energy Star Certified and Tested Buffington Home will become increasingly valued on the market and contribute to a healthier planet for generations to come.

Buffington Homes is a local Austin homebuilder currently building in 15 communities in the Austin and Central Texas Area. To learn more about these energy efficient Buffington Homes for sale in Austin TX, please visit www.MyBuffington.com .
