

Adorn Beauty Enhancements Celebrates 3-Year Anniversary by Raising Funds for NAAF During Alopecia Areata Awareness Month

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 12, 2016 (SEND2PRESS NEWSWIRE) – September marks two special occasions for beauty consultant and hair specialist, Archia Hall-Owens, better known as ChiChi Owens, the owner of Adorn Beauty Enhancements. Hall is not only celebrating her three-year anniversary in business, but she is also bringing heightened appreciation to Alopecia Areata Awareness Month. To commemorate both, Hall has committed to donating $25 for every custom wig sold during the month of September to The National Alopecia Areata Foundation (NAAF).

Hall has had her own personal experience with combating hair loss. Relaxers, coloring, braiding and hair glue all played a part in her waning hairline. The matter was exacerbated when she could never find a wig that properly fit her smaller sized head. She started gluing wefts of hair into stocking caps back in 2000. Her wig designs gave her a new felt sense of confidence while she worked on stimulating the regrowth of her hair.

Hall was pleasantly surprised by the compliments and requests she got from women wanting her to provide custom wigs for them as well! She launched Adorn

Beauty Enhancements as a central one-stop location for all things make-up and hair. The shop is located in Atlanta and online at <http://adornbeautyenhancements.com/>.

A beauty industry veteran with 15 years of experience, Hall originally obtained degrees in human resource management and psychology. She has found that both fields come into play when dealing with clients who are tackling issues of self-esteem and confidence due to hair loss and alopecia. After working in corporate for 10 years, doing weaves and make-up part time for friends and family, she finally decided to enroll in cosmetology school at the Fayette Beauty School, and later open her own business. Her passion for hair loss led her to the renowned Toni Love Training Center where she received her non-surgical Hair Loss Certification.

Unlike wigs found in retail stores, Hall's exclusive line of custom medical wigs and hair prosthetics are specifically designed for the woman with little or no hair. The designs are partially or totally hand tied or sewn on with a sewing machine, with a smaller cap and a base that is specifically designed to not irritate a sensitive scalp.

Adorn Beauty's exclusive line of custom medical quality wigs are for all nationalities and are designed for a totally natural and completely undetectable appearance; from the amount of hair in the cap, to how the hair moves when the wig is worn. Adorn's medical custom wig prices start at $500, with custom fashion wigs starting at $100 excluding the hair.

"Something like losing one's hair may not readily sound like a big deal, but our hair is essentially our crown, especially for women," explains Hall. "That's why I'm so grateful to organizations like NAAF that continually provide guidance, counseling and assistance to those affected by alopecia areata. I have found that many people are completely unaware of Alopecia Areata Awareness Month, so I'm thrilled to be able to celebrate my business anniversary while drawing attention to the dedicated month. I am fulfilled knowing that I am assisting with helping to heal hearts and heads with my knowledge, care and beautiful wig designs."
