McCall, who has been with the company since 2014, is a respected subject matter expert in the field of mortgage quality control and championed the development and implementation of ARMCO's ACES Analytics, the industry's first loan quality control benchmarking software and the technology behind ARMCO's Mortgage QC Industry Trends Report.

"ACES Analytics and the Mortgage QC Industry Trends Report have made a big impact in our growth, visibility and standing in the industry over the past few years," said Avi Naider, ARMCO's CEO. "Phil's vision for technology and mortgage quality control is a key component of our growth over the next several years. We anticipate the company will continue to benefit from his vision in his role as president of ARMCO."

Phil McCall has been in the mortgage industry for more than 25 years and has held numerous executive positions with both mortgage lenders and mortgage technology providers. In the past year, he received two top industry awards: HousingWire magazine's HW Vanguard Award, which the magazine states "recognizes C-level and business unit executives who have become leaders in their respective fields within housing and mortgage finance – those whose leadership is moving markets forward," and the 2017 Tech All-Star Award by the Mortgage Bankers Association (MBA), which recognizes an individual who has made significant and outstanding contributions in mortgage technology.

McCall is a key contributor to several mortgage quality and auditing technologies, is a member of MBA's Fraud Issues Committee and has been sought out as a mortgage fraud subject matter expert by multiple law enforcement agencies.

"I'm truly excited to be a part of an organization like ARMCO that shares my commitment to technology innovation and my passion for real change," said McCall. "It's especially important today, as the industry drives its focus even more toward loan quality and data integrity. I'm looking forward to the great things we will accomplish as we grow, and the positive changes we'll make for lenders and the industry as a whole."
