Yen was recognized for leveraging data and workflow automation to help Cloudvirga introduce a number of groundbreaking capabilities not found in any other digital mortgage platform. Noteworthy innovations introduced under Yen's leadership include simultaneous submission of loan files to both Fannie Mae's and Freddie Mac's automated underwriting systems and the 4.0 release of the Cloudvirga Enterprise POS, which raised the digital mortgage bar with unprecedented workflow automation for the broadest selection of loan products available in any POS system.

"Josephine has been a driving force behind Cloudvirga's momentum as the industry's fastest growing and most disruptive digital mortgage technology," said Cloudvirga Co-founder Kyle Kamrooz. “She takes a diagnostic approach to mortgage automation and excels at spearheading the development of very complex product features. We all hold Josephine in very high regard and congratulate her on this well deserved honor.”

“The hundreds of nominations that flooded in this year for MPA’s annual Elite Women list made it clear that women have been making their voices heard in what was once a male-dominated field,” said the magazine in its special report. “These 70 women are shaping a new future for America’s mortgage industry.”

This is the fifth year that Mortgage Professional America’s Elite Women in Mortgage list has honored women who are changing the face of the U.S. mortgage industry. To view the complete list of honorees, visit <https://www.mpamag.com/contents/e-magazine.aspx?id=107049>.
