It can be used as a practical travel itinerary or simply as a fun learning vessel for better understanding the state's diverse geography. Each page features authentic illustrations by Colorado kids, offering their own unique interpretations of the notable places the characters visit.

The narrative follows the travels of Eli, an adventurous boy, and his pal Mort the Moose. While on their Colorado road trip adventure, the pair mountain bike the 401 dirt trail in Crested Butte, snowboard down sand dunes, imagine sea creatures swimming in waterfalls in Estes Park, feed alligators, roast marshmallows, sleep under the stars, and experience all of the joy and wonder of Colorado in the summer.

The book is the ninth in the series of travel adventure books for kids by husband-and-wife duo and western Colorado residents Elyssa Nager (Author) and Ken Nager (Creative Director).

Next stop, Fort Collins and Fort Fun.

As you can imagine, there were lots of fun things to do at Fort Fun. But of course, our favorite thing was to launch water balloons from their water balloon launcher.

Then, instead of balloons, I decided to try launching Mort. He didn't think that was so funny though.

"We wanted to share all of the adventures our own children experience living in an outdoor recreation mecca like Colorado," said author Elyssa Nager. "Kids love the books because the backgrounds are illustrated by kids, for kids. Like all of the other travel and adventure books in the 'Eli and Mort Epic Adventure Series,' children can follow Eli and Mort on their complete epic adventure, visit just some of their favorite places, or simply use their imaginations. The books are a great resource for parents planning a trip while getting their kids involved in the process."

The book is already gaining favorable press among trusted Colorado news sources. "Adorable!" says Colorado Public Radio, "This newest one goes all over the State...a really, really great option for kids (gifts)."

Next stop, hiking in Rocky Mountain National Park.

While at the park we hiked
the Wild Basin Trifecta. Well, I hiked and Mort took a ride in my backpack.

We saw Copeland Falls, Ouzel Falls and Calypso Cascades.

I imagined Orca whales dancing in the falls. Mort tested the water with his hoof. It was cold!
