With an increased availability of resources and the financial backing of Monument, a nationally renowned private equity firm, Command will look to extend its presence in the Northeast United States and expand into untapped markets throughout the country.

Command’s executive and core management team will attain equity positions in the company and will continue to direct daily operations. The company’s well-established work product and company culture will stay intact.

“We share the same vision on Command’s expansion and long-term growth, and it was crucial for us to find a partner who connected with our thought process and overall outlook,” said Rich Perri and Steve Cassell, Co-founders of Command Investigations.

“Our mission has always been to provide our clients with unrivaled customer service and an impeccable work product, and those ideas will remain the cornerstone of our success. Monument has fit in seamlessly with our company culture and will be a crucial resource for us as we continue to scale our operations nationally.”

Command is slated to obtain its private investigation license in New York and New Jersey by the end of 2019, with plans of adding Texas, Illinois, North Carolina and South Carolina in 2020.

Currently, Command holds PI licenses in in Florida, Georgia, California, Pennsylvania and Delaware.
