Recognizing his years of excellence and client satisfaction in the area of civil trial and personal injury law, the American Institute of Personal Injury Attorneys has inducted Sarasota injury lawyer M. David Shapiro of Shapiro Goldman Babboni Fernandez & Walsh into the 2017 Florida's Best Attorneys.

Created to help aid clients seeking legal council from only the most qualified personal injury lawyers, the American Institutes' 10 Best Attorney Award is only given to a select group of highly capable attorneys with the highest degree of client satisfaction and professional integrity.

Candidates under consideration for the AIOPIA 10 Best Attorney Award must have an exemplary career demonstrating both a high degree of professional achievement inside and outside of the courtroom, as well as a record of exceptional client satisfaction. Candidates must be nominated by a member of the AIOPIA, peer attorney or past client.

Attorney David Shapiro had this to say about receiving the award, "As an attorney who specializes in represented the victims of serious accidents, I am often approached by individuals in a very difficult and frightening situation. Frequently, potential clients understand they need a truly effective lawyer with a history of success, but do not know how to select an attorney they can trust with their case."

He added, "Organizations such as the AIOPIA help attorneys demonstrate their integrity and effectiveness, and make choosing highly qualified legal council easier for clients who have had their lives turned upside down by injury."
