Golden Heart LA is dedicated to helping children who suffer from life-threatening diseases or disabilities. To hold the blood drive, Golden Heart LA teamed with Ayden's Army of Angels, Inc., a Childhood Cancer Foundation established in 2015 in honor of Ayden Brown, who was diagnosed at 13 months with Stage 4 Alveolar Rhabdomyosarcoma, a rare type of cancer that can occur at any age but mostly affects children.

The blood drive is in honor of Ayden's bout with cancer and what would have been his sixth birthday. One pint of blood can save up to three lives, says Golden Heart LA. DocMagic's bunny slippers will be handed out on a first-to-donate basis at the blood drive.

Founded in 1987 by Dominic Iannitti, DocMagic has a history of involvement with charitable causes, especially those involving children. The company's long-time mascot named "Doc," is a novel bunny that has become a recognizable part of its brand within the mortgage industry.

In 2016, the bunny slippers were officially introduced at a mortgage technology convention to celebrate the release of DocMagic's Total eClose™ system. At the event, hundreds of conference attendees wore the slippers symbolizing comfort and borrowers' newfound ability to easily close a mortgage loan electronically in the comfort of their own homes.

Over the years, the slippers have grown in popularity and DocMagic's Total eClose system has achieved the top eClose solution ranking in the mortgage industry.
