Glassford joins EPIC from Birmingham-based law firm Balch & Bingham where he was a commercial litigator. He currently serves on the U.S. Army Reserve's Regional Emergency Preparedness Liaison Officer Team for Federal Emergency Management Agency Region IV, where he coordinates Department of Defense military assistance to other federal agencies, state governments, and civilian authorities during large-scale disaster response operations.

"We are excited to further enhance EPIC's operations in Birmingham and the Southeast Region with the addition of Jeremiah," said Crawford McInnis. "Jeremiah will be a terrific addition as we continue to build and strengthen our EPIC team here in Birmingham and across the country."
