

HTCIA CISO Summit Releases a Limited Amount of Complimentary Passes Generously Donated by Summit Sponsors

ROSEVILLE, Calif., Aug. 6, 2013 (SEND2PRESS NEWSWIRE) – The High Technology Crimes Investigation Association (HTCIA) announced today that several sponsors generously donated a limited amount of complimentary tickets to the HTCIA CISO Summit in Summerlin, Nevada on September 12. Summit sponsors McAfee, Cylance, Symantec, Essextec and InfoSecurity donated the complimentary tickets for the event being held at the lavish J.W. Marriott Las Vegas Resort and Spa.

“Even though these complimentary passes will provide full access to the published sessions and activities, there are several take-a-ways and opportunities that will only be available to paid attendees,” said Peter Morin, HTCIA International Secretary/CISO Conference Chair.

The complimentary tickets are available on a first come, first serve basis, from now through August 19, but due to the limited quantity Morin encourages to act quickly.

Please register at: <http://www.htciacisosummit.org/register>.

The HTCIA CISO Summit was designed for participants to engage with industry leaders, discuss the new security challenges facing us today, and learn about efficient ways to prevent attacks, and detect threats quickly. Stuart McClure (CEO & Founder of Cylance) and Brian Kenyon (CTO at McAfee) will be the featured Keynote Presentations.
