“Apple designed iTunes to help every iOS user back up their valuable data. And to protect their personal info and privacy, iTunes makes it possible to encrypt backups, which is terrific,” said Frank Kong, the founder and CEO of iMobie Inc. “However, many users made to encrypt their backups, but failed to remember the passwords. To save them from the trouble of forgetting backup passwords, we bring a new version of PhoneRescue that is able to get back iTunes backup passwords.”
