

KiwiGeeker Software Introduces Global Freeware – KiwiG PhonTunes for Users Who Are not into iTunes to Conquer Multi-platform Music Transfer Barrier

HONG KONG and NEW YORK, Feb. 21, 2014 (SEND2PRESS NEWSWIRE) – KiwiG PhonTunes, launched by KiwiGeeker – the pioneering music transfer and data management solution provider – is the only lifetime free music transfer software for users that require a need for music transfer across multiple devices and platforms (iOS / iTunes / PC / Android / External disk).

Whoever doesn't like using iTunes can now fully enjoy limitless music migration with this "extended iTunes" solution.

Since its release to the market, KiwiG PhonTunes generated quite positive feedback from reliable download and review sites such as Baixaki and Softpedia. It's highly recommended due to the user-friendly interface, practical easy-to-use functions and multiple music transfer methods. It's the real-deal software, charging no fees at all whether in future version updates or extended functions.

Usually, iPhone, iPad and iPod touch users can only rely on iTunes as their way of keeping things in check – to sync songs and playlists via iTunes with USB cables. That is how Apple wants you to do it. Considering the increasing demands in music transfer between various platforms, KiwiG PhonTunes remains the current functions that iTunes realizes in iOS devices, and at the same time it enhances functions to keep a user's music files on a computer and then sync it across to multiple channels – Android, external disk all included – and vice versa. It now completely solves the hassle and buries the multi-platform limitation in history.

This featured freeware will display all detected music libraries in an intuitive graphic interface, to explore the audio tracks on devices with ease. Users will select, manage the pathways of music data and accomplish the quick transferring in seconds. The utility not only scans for duplicate files, also it helps users to customize the details of the songs, and then transfer batches of songs. Users can completely rely on it as a daily music backup tool for its features with recovering an iTunes library to the local folder.
