“It’s the inner journey of a person on the run from his demons, from an unknown enemy. It’s about a growing mistrust for each other. It could be the story of a victim, a scapegoat, a pawn in a devious system,” says the director, Vito Dinatolo, who reveals more spoilers: “Fear confuses reality, which is already altered by a real epidemic, quickly spreading and deforming Jay’s paranoid perception of reality. The movie touches contemporary issues, like mysterious epidemics, terrorism paranoia, veterans Post Traumatic Stress Disorder, mass shootings, big brother conspiracy. Bottom line, it’s a contemporary tale of realistic madness.”

In these hard times of global pandemic, it's perfect timing to sit back and relax with this cathartic thriller about a mysterious pandemic indeed.
