With this addition, Nevada has become the ninth state in the Simplifile network to implement e-recording statewide.

“Simplifile welcomes Nevada to the growing roster of states that have embraced e-recording throughout all of their recording jurisdictions,” said Simplifile President Paul Clifford. “While e-recording is available in most major metropolitan areas, jurisdictions of all sizes can benefit tremendously from the efficiency and cost-savings e-recording provides. We commend Nevada’s commitment to improving document recording services through technology and hope this can serve as an example to jurisdictions throughout the nation.”

In 2007, Carson City County became the first Nevada county to join Simplifile’s e-recording network. With the addition of Mineral County, all 17

Nevada counties now e-record with Simplifile.

Using Simplifile's e-recording platform, recording offices throughout the state are able to electronically receive, stamp, record and return documents within minutes, which reduces documentation and processing errors. Settlement agents can also submit recording fees and other recording-related expenses directly through the Simplifile system, thus eliminating check-writing expenses.

More than 1,887 jurisdictions nationwide e-record with Simplifile, making it the largest e-recording network in the U.S. Nevada joins Alaska, Arizona, Colorado, Delaware, Hawaii, Iowa, Massachusetts and Oregon in offering e-recording statewide through Simplifile.
