“The museum received submissions from several thousands of the world’s leading manufacturers and industrial and graphic design firms from more than 48 countries. I am so proud and humbled to be the recipient of such a prestigious design award because awarded corporations include some of the world’s most visionary companies such as Apple Inc., Mercedes-Benz and Samsung,” Dr. Thienna Ho, inventor of CandyLipz®, says.

In addition to the GOOD DESIGN™ award, the Xtreme Lip-Shaper® System also won a gold medal for technical design at INPEX, America’s largest invention show, and, additionally, Dr. Ho was named “Woman Inventor of 2013” by Korea Invention News. The product has been featured in multiple news stories, and has also had live, on-air demonstrations on CBS Good Day Sacramento, San Diego Living, Star 94.1 FM and other media outlets.

CandyLipz® Xtreme Lip-Shaper® System is clinically-proven safe for intended use. The device uses a 3,500-year-old Chinese “cupping” method (suction) and is coupled with advanced lip-shaper technology to instantly shape, contour and enhance the lip’s appearance.

The Xtreme Lip-Shaper® System is easy to use and produces noticeable results in two minutes; results last for hours. The CandyLipz® lip pumps are available in several different designs which allow users to create single or double-lobed lips. For many users, it’s their go-to lip shaping product. In fact, there’s even a term for using it – CandyLipping.

Dr. Ho adds that the patent-pending design of her invention means that other companies can’t deliver the same product or results.
