The content of the eBook includes:

- Why outsourcing is a 21st century best practice
- Consider the statistics before you begin the hiring process
- Talent drought exacerbated by nonprofit employee churn
- Managing overhead costs
- The old model – 20th century model investment
- The new model – the 21st century model investment

- The benefits of outsourcing accounting for nonprofits.

“Any type of administrative cost for a nonprofit has to yield maximum value and efficiency because, understandably, Executive Directors want the majority of funding to go towards fulfilling the mission,” explains Mr. Rocky Davidson, CPA. “Outsourcing the accounting function of the organization allows the nonprofit to have expert accounting talent managing the accounting processes using best-of-breed software solutions.”

The eBook addresses the challenges most nonprofits face with regard to accounting, beginning with a limited budget and market conditions that make it increasingly difficult for nonprofits to recruit accounting talent with the necessary skill set.

“Technological advances, particularly in the area of solution delivery via the cloud, has created new options for nonprofits. It’s a new business model that replaces the old mindset of a do-it-yourself, in-house accounting structure,” says Davidson.

The eBook is free and available for download at Qbix Accounting Solutions <http://qbixas.com/accounting-help/>.

“Executive Directors understand that accountability and transparency begin with sound financials,” notes Davidson. “What they may not understand is that outsourcing their accounting function can help them attain accountability and transparency much sooner and at a lower cost than hiring and building the necessary infrastructure themselves.”
