"Nancy Pratt has been a career-long advocate for advancing digital mortgage strategies, and it is immensely gratifying to see her efforts recognized so publicly," said Mark McElroy, president and CEO of Pavaso. "Nancy has been one the keys to Pavaso's success in bringing digital closing technology to the mortgage industry, and we feel fortunate to have her as part of our team."

According to the magazine, this year's winners all, "demonstrate leadership that inspires those in their own companies, in their communities and in the industry at large." Winners not only had to excel within their individual companies, but show influence in the wider industry through contributions on panels, publications, mentoring and volunteering.

“Saying that I’m honored to receive this award would be an understatement,” Pratt said. “I have had the good fortune to work with some of the most intelligent and accomplished women in the mortgage industry, and to be counted among such an impressive group is amazing.”

“The incredible accomplishments of these women span every part of our industry,” Sarah Wheeler, HousingWire Magazine Editor, said. “Their fields of accomplishments vary, but their impact is indisputable.”
