

PPRN Radio Announces April 25 Premiere of 'The Online Film Show with Phil Hall'

NAUGATUCK, Conn., April 4, 2016 (SEND2PRESS NEWSWIRE) – PPRN Radio is pleased to announce the addition of a new program to its schedule: “The Online Movie Show with Phil Hall,” a weekly celebration of films and filmmaking. “The Online Movie Show” will have its premiere on April 25, 2016 and will broadcast live on PPRN Radio (PPRNRadio.net) on Monday nights at 7 p.m. ET.

Each week, “The Online Movie Show” will present original interviews with the creative talent on both sides of the camera, and will visit with leading film critics to ascertain the best choices in the theaters, on DVD and on the streaming channels. The premiere episode will feature director Michael Mongillo and actor Jason Alan Smith from the upcoming thriller “Diane” plus Miami Sun Post critic Ruben Rosario offering a preview of the summer’s top movies.

Upcoming episodes will feature underground film icons Debbie Rochon and Carmine Capobianco, cult film director Michael Legge and award-winning documentary filmmaker Eric Green.

Phil Hall brings three decades of film journalism experience to “The Online Movie Show.” He is the author of the acclaimed books “The History of Independent Cinema” and “The Greatest Bad Movies of All Time,” and his new book “In Search of Lost Films” is scheduled for release by BearManor Media later this year. His film writing has been featured in The New York Times, Wired and American Movie Classics Magazine, and he is currently on the Governing Committee of the Online Film Critics Society.

About PPRN Radio:

Now celebrating its fourth anniversary online, PPRN Radio is one of the most eclectic Internet broadcasting endeavors, offering a line-up of comedy, talk and music shows.
