

Quandis Joins Amazon Web Services Partner Network

FOOTHILL RANCH, Calif., Oct., 31, 2013 (SEND2PRESS NEWSWIRE) – Quandis, Inc., a leading provider of default management technology solutions, announced that it has become a technology partner of Amazon's Web Services Partner Network (APN). Joining APN underscores the investment and commitment that Quandis has made to utilize Amazon Web Services (AWS) for cloud computing.

"We've been using AWS cloud-based storage services for quite some time to cost effectively and efficiently support our enterprise-level client base," said Eric Patrick, CTO of Quandis. "By joining AWS Partner Network we are able to take advantage of a number of different services that benefit us, it allows us to further scale our technology, and it provides us with additional expertise in managing data that resides in the cloud."

Quandis joining AWS Partner Network reinforces the company's software development and maintenance approach to building, migrating and managing client infrastructures within the cloud. Quandis is known to develop contemporary, flexible and scalable best-of-breed default servicing solutions delivered on a SaaS basis that securely hosts data in the cloud. The company possess years of cloud computing and enterprise application development experience. Strengthening its relationship with AWS better positions Quandis to expand operations and facilitate use of the comprehensive benefits that AWS offers.
