“Let’s Party” is already being added to Top 40 Billboard reporting playlists on stations across the country in markets such as California, Miami and Atlanta. The upbeat pop tune positions the young songstress as a #PartyPrincess whose reign has just begun.

A natural performance artist, Tiffani boasts the confidence of a woman who has always known just what she wants. When just three years old, she would walk around in her mother’s heels singing everything from R&B and hip hop to pop to classic rock. In the early 2000s, she began making her voice heard performing at an array of events, including musical theater competitions and opera shows. In 2010, she won the critic’s choice award in the Florida State

Thespian festival.

“Let’s Party” is Tiffani’s first major release since signing with the label Wonda Music, Inc. The song was produced in part by Murk Da Mic and Jerry Wonda. “Let’s Party” is currently topping the “DRT Global Top 200 Airplay,” “DRT Global Top 150 Independent Airplay,” “DRT Global Top 50 Pop Airplay” and the “DRT Global Top 50 R&B/Hip-Hop Airplay” charts.

The music video “Let’s Party,” directed by Joan Pabon, captures Tiffani’s wild woman essence and rebellious attitude. Influenced by trailblazers like Madonna, Lady Gaga, Drake, and Emmylou Harris, Tiffani LeBlanc is the #PartyPrincess for the new millennial generation. As she continues to hone her unique sound incorporating hip hop, pop, dance, and R&B, music fans will continue to bow down to her reign.
