Send2Press® Newswire

“This new site displays SCV Audio Video’s expertise and positions them as the leading provider for high-end audio-video installations,” Joshua Maddux, CEO of 95Visual, says. “Specifically, SCV Audio Video wanted to improve their visibility with an updated design and compelling content to match the quality of work they provide.”

The new features that SCV Audio Video chose to include in its website redesign captivate the audience and offer an easy-to-navigate format. Users can quickly discern residential from commercial services making it quick and easy to find useful information. A photo gallery showcases past projects so potential clients can get a preview of what’s possible for them.

There's also a helpful blog that talks about a range of topics from curved TVs versus flat screen TVs to advantages of sound bars and exactly how SCV Video Audio can help businesses keep clients happy.

"Its clients will love how SCV Audio Video goes above and beyond to explain how its audio-video projects will transform their experience at home or in the office," Maddux says.

Robert Marshall of SCV Audio Video says, "Working with 95Visual on the new site captured precisely what the business offers clients with a seamless structure from start to finish. 95Visual is pleased to support small businesses by providing personalized solutions for each client."
