“Alan’s rich experience in sales and business development in the AV business will immediately give Conen Mounts the greater representation we want throughout the entire United States,” said Frank M. Culotta, President of Stirling Communications.

Alan’s background in technology education and sales at Thomson Corporation, Hitachi Solutions and Avocor are a real asset for Stirling Communications as he understands the needs in education and the corporate verticals to present those products that solve the biggest user challenges.

“I’m excited to help the Stirling Communications team and the Conen brand grow its existence. We represent top quality niche products that are essential to helping dealers and integrators deploy AV solutions that extend beyond simple boxes,” Sylvia added.

About Stirling Communications:

In 1999, Stirling Communications was born out of Symco Inc., an independent manufacturer’s rep company and its need to connect some of our leading brands with our best integrators and customers. Stirling Communications focuses on targeted industry-leading commercial AV brands.
