In the following heartfelt statement, he discusses and addresses his past and his plans for the future.

In short, he says, “Over the last 18 months I’ve been taking much needed time to look in the mirror and work on improving myself through introspection and therapy.

“I will always look back at this past year and a half as the most important and the most challenging time of my life because it provoked the most significant growth and change I’ve ever undergone. It’s opened my eyes to the moral duty I have as a member of the EDM community, and society as a whole.”
