

TeamSnap and Sports Feel Good Stories launch search for the 'Sports Feel Good Story of the Year'

BOULDER, Colo., May 28, 2014 (SEND2PRESS NEWSWIRE) – TeamSnap and Sports Feel Good Stories today launched a contest to find the “Sports Feel Good Story of the Year” to recognize inspiring athletes, coaches and fans from around the world. Submissions will be accepted between now and October, and winners will be chosen in December 2014.

“From a NFL player picking up the tab for a Christmas toy shopping spree to a high school basketball team manager with autism making 3-pointers at a varsity game, sports feel good stories reinforce the best of human nature,” said SportsFeelGoodStories.com Founder Mike O’Halloran. “That’s why people love sharing these stories.”

Whether spectators or participants in the stories, people can submit entries through Oct. 31 at SportsFeelGoodStories.com. A panel of representatives from TeamSnap and Sports FeelGood Stories will select 10 finalists at the beginning of November, followed by a public vote on the site to determine the first, second and third place stories. The first place winner will receive a $500 cash prize. See complete details at <http://SportsFeelGoodStories.com/>.

“We often hear inspiring stories from our millions of users around the world, and this is a way to bring to light those stories and the everyday heroes involved in them,” said Ken McDonald, vice president of customer acquisition, TeamSnap. “It’s easy to get swept up in the competitive spirit of sports, but when it comes down to it, we’re all out there on the field to have fun and support each other. We’re excited to see what submissions people send.”
