“Being recognized last year as one of the best places to work in the Dallas-Forth Worth area was truly an honor; to have it happen a second time reaffirms the approach we’ve taken in creating an entrepreneurial environment where our loan officers are empowered to succeed,” said Michael Cooksey, founder of The Cooksey Team. “This achievement doesn’t happen without our team of dedicated employees so I want to extend my sincerest thanks to them for making this possible.”

More than 500 companies entered Dallas Business Journal’s “2018 Best Places to Work” awards program, which is now in its 16th year of existence. According to the publication, “Each of these companies rose to the tops of their categories based on an indexed score created via employee responses to a survey conducted by Quantum Workplace.”

Companies were also ranked within their respective categories, and the results will be announced at an event at Dr Pepper Ballpark in Frisco, Texas on Thursday, October 18.
