

Uproar Entertainment Releases 3rd Stand-Up Comedy CD from Adam Hunter 'Still Broke'

LOS ANGELES, Calif., April 20, 2018 (SEND2PRESS NEWSWIRE) – Uproar Entertainment announces the release of “Still Broke” by Adam Hunter. Recorded live at The Comedy Underground in Seattle, Wash., “Still Broke” is the third Stand-Up Comedy CD Uproar has produced by Adam Hunter.

A talented performer and writer, Hunter has performed all over the world. An integral part of the MMA Circuit; a recurring guest on ESPN's SportsNation; and multiple TV appearances have generated a fan base of more than 100,000 listeners/month.

About "Still Broke":

"Still Broke" has every kind of joke, from cheeky wordplay to raunchy overshares, referencing anything from Bill Cosby to enhancement pills. There are no sacred cows, no ceremony to stand on, no time to explain the humor and no effort to assess the damage. Adam employs the law of averages, or more aptly, the LOL of averages. His satirical chutzpah is framed by endurance. Adam Hunter is focused. After a joke, he's on to the next one (and the next one). There's pace and perseverance as Adam Hunter goes against the grain. "Still Broke" provides waves and waves of deviant debauchery.

Adam isn't afraid to voice brutally honest resentment towards his newfound marriage, roast his audiences' appearance, or embrace taboos. Adam uses stereotypes and sensitive topics as a launchpad for brash imagination. He invites the audience to respond to his problematic playfulness; there's refuge in that cathartic recklessness.

"I am so excited about dropping my new Album. This is the best thing I ever made – not including my daughter who drops in July," says Hunter.

"Adam's a smart aleck, certainly not for the faint of heart. But there's no denying the funny and the talent that created it! Eventually he will get you, by shock or by wit or by unflinching realness. It's only a matter of time," says David Drozen, President of Uproar.
