

Wondershare Announce the Launch of Nokia 3310 Consumer Survey

LONDON, U.K., March 9, 2017 (SEND2PRESS NEWSWIRE) – With the constant battle of global tech giants raging, brands such as Apple, Google, Sony and Samsung are forever pushing the limits of consumer tech further than ever before, says tech firm Wondershare. Yet whilst stretching the technological horizon is the ultimate aim of every self-respecting brand, a small Finnish start-up has rocked the mobile industry by announcing the relaunch of the iconic Nokia 3310.

Choosing to take a nostalgic look backwards rather than progressively forward, HMD Global has announced plans to relaunch Nokia's successful 3310 model – a handset first seen 17 years ago. Expected to relaunch this summer at a price of $52 (a mere drop in the ocean compares to the prices of Apple's iPhone or Samsung's Galaxy ranges), the Nokia 3310 had a reputation for being near indestructible.

In light of the recent market announcement to revive the only phone to sport a 30 day battery life, software company Wondershare has launched an online running survey of mobile phone users to ask the simple question, "Will you buy a Nokia 3310?"

While there, participants can learn about Wondershare's dr.fone software, and download tools to transfer old Android/iPhone data to new Nokia 6, and/or recover deleted photos, videos, contacts, messaging, etc. on Nokia 6.

The survey, hosted on the company's website, has to date received over 2100 votes, with the results currently showing a landslide victory for the "yes" vote at 74%. In addition to the vote, the survey provides an opportunity for participants to comment on their yes or no vote.

Wondershare are keen to involve as many participants in the survey as possible. Individuals interested in taking part can visit the Nokia 3310 survey at: <https://drfone.wondershare.com/yes-or-no/will-you-buy-nokia-6.html>.
